American Colonist: William Penn

Written by: Dominique, 4A

Have you ever wanted to have your own rules? William Penn made his own rules. He was born in October 24, 1644. He was part of the government which made him a gentry. He was famous for being the biggest land owner. William Penn was an American colonist who was driven and acted courageously.

William Penn was driven and courageous for many reasons. One reason he was driven (focused) is because he was focused on telling the commoners an important message. For instance, he tried to tell the commoners that they shouldn't let the king choose their decisions. William Penn, however, was courageous because he stood up for his own rights. For example, he didn't like how the king treated everyone,so,he thought of making a land where there were no laws and mistreatment.

William Penn the english settler,showed that he was brave and focused. William Penn lived to be 74 years old. His death is probably because he was considered very old in that time period. He will always be remembered because he colonized Pennsylvania which is now recognized as one of the first 13th states of the U.S with a government. If William Penn was alive, I'd ask him why did you want a place where there was no ruler if you were a gentry? What would you ask him?
